Dear Graduate Students,

This handbook is provided to inform graduate students in the Department of Political Science about the policies and procedures of the department and the University. It is also intended to familiarize you with the requirements to obtain the Ph.D. The Ph.D. program is designed for graduate students who seek broad training in political science, who are inspired by large questions about politics, and who aspire to develop considerable strength in more than one field.

The Department of Political Science has 22 faculty members whose areas of teaching are American Government and Politics, Comparative Government and Politics, International Relations, Law and Politics, and Political Theory. We encourage students to do work in allied departments such as Anthropology, Economics, German and Romance Languages and Literatures, History, the Humanities Center, Philosophy, Public Policy, and Sociology.

Admission

The department admits 10 to 12 new graduate students each year, selecting them from the approximately 200 applications that it receives annually. The deadline for application for admission to graduate study and the award of financial assistance is January 15.

Decisions are made exclusively in late February or early March and announced by March 15. A B.A., B.S., or their equivalent, and the Graduate Record Examinations (GRE) are required for application.

English Language Requirements

Students whose native language is not English must take the TOEFL examinations or provide other evidence of fluency in English

M.A. Degree Requirements

The Master of Arts degree is offered only to students who have been admitted into the Ph.D. program. For the M.A., the student must complete at least seven one-semester courses at the 600-level with a grade of B or better, and demonstrate an effective reading knowledge of one approved foreign language. The student will be put on the expected to graduate list for a M.A. and continue in the program to obtain the Ph.D.

Ph.D. Degree Requirements

All candidates for the Ph.D. must satisfy the following requirements: Complete a minimum of 12 one-semester courses at the 600-level with a grade of B or better. Eight of these courses must be graduate (600-level) courses in the Political Science Department. No more than two of these courses may be independent studies. No more than one graduate-level course may be taken at another division of JHU for credit toward fulfilling the requirements. All candidates must also meet language proficiency requirements. Some subfields may require graduate students who wish to take their major comprehensive exam in those subfields to complete specific course work.

Financial Aid

When you are admitted to the program, the Department of Political Science awards you a fellowship for the first academic year that covers the full cost of tuition plus a stipend. If you make good progress toward the Ph.D. you may expect financial aid covering the full cost of tuition and at least the same stipend through the fifth year. If you receive additional or alternative fellowships from outside of the University you are to report this information to the Director of Graduate Studies (DGS) to work out an overall package.

Teaching Responsibilities

Graduate students are expected to work as Teaching Assistants beginning their second year at the University. The Director of Graduate Studies assigns TAs to the courses that need assistants. All students receiving a teaching assignment for the first time must complete an electronic I-9 form at the Student Employment Office. If your I-9 is not complete, you will not receive your first pay. A hold is put on all students who have not completed an I-9. Room assignments are decided by the Registrar's office. If a room assignment needs to be changed, contact the Academic Coordinator and the necessary paperwork to make a room change request.

There is a TA Training program. In collaboration with departments, deans, faculty, and the Graduate Representative Organization (GRO), the Center for Educational Resources (CER) offers a TA Training Program. For further information contact their office:

Registration – Incoming, Full-time and Non-resident Students

- Incoming, returning and full-time resident students will use ISIS to register online for the coming semester. You will be notified when you can register. Registration for the spring semester begins around January and for the fall semester around August/September.
- New graduate students will have access to register online using ISIS. Go to the Registrar's website to get the exact dates of registration at <http://www.jhu.edu/registrar>.
- Non-resident students must register each semester in order to remain active degree candidates. While on non-resident status, students are expected to provide the Registrar's office and the department with an updated current address and are expected to respond to all communications and mailings within the deadlines specified.

- An Annual Report for non-resident students must be returned to the department Chair by the deadline date located at top of the form. Non-resident students who fail to return the Annual Report form risk being withdrawn from the program.
- Resident students who have completed the 12 course requirements must register for Dissertation Research using their advisor code when registering.
- Graduate students may register to audit courses during the semester. Permission to audit must be received from the instructor. Ask also about any requirements for the course.
- To release a registration advising hold you must see your faculty advisor. If you register in person, you may obtain a registration form from the Registrar's office (Garland Hall) but you must have a signature from your adviser to complete it.

Online registration will NOT be available for:

- ⌘ Interdivisional registration
- ⌘ Intersession courses
- ⌘ Cooperative registration
- ⌘ Permission required/instructor consent courses
- ⌘ Late registration
- ⌘ Part-time students/pay per credit

I-9

All graduate students will need to complete a Form I-9. An appointment needs to be made with Student Employment Services to complete the process of your Form I-9 (Section 2) within three business days from your first day of work. Go to this url to make an appointment: <https://orchid.hosts.jhmi.edu/stujob/appScheduler.cfm>. You will need to present originals of requested documents to verify your eligibility to work. Go to this url for a list of requested documents: <https://orchid.hosts.jhmi.edu/stujob/seoform/i-9page4.pdf>.

Section 1 of Form I-9 needs to be completed on or before the first day of work. Go to www.newI9.com and input the employers code 11472. Students who are US Citizens and completing section 1 of the I-9, select “Students from KSAS and WSE” as location.

All international students must complete an electronic I-9 form at the Office of International Services (OIS), 135 Garland Hall, 410-516-1013. You will need to take with you an I-9 Data Collection form that will be completed by the department. This can be picked up before going to OIS. You will also need to complete a Foreign National Information Form with the listed documents from the department. A copy of your passport will be needed to complete the process of your I-9. Payroll will put a hold on your stipend check and will not release it if you have not completed your I-9. All international students must be conscience of their work authorization dates. If your work authorization expires, a new DS-2019 needs to be completed along with a new electronic I-9. All transactions must be done in person at OIS.

Social Security Numbers for international students need to be submitted once you receive a permanent one. OIS will instruct you on how to obtain a card. Please submit a copy of your social security card to the Student Employment Office and they will notify the payroll office to make changes in the payroll system.

International Students

The Office of International Services (OIS) assists the international community at Hopkins with visa status issues and with the challenges of making the transition to graduate school at Johns Hopkins University. Staff members can answer questions and advise students on immigration regulations, financial concerns, health matters, housing, employment possibilities and other issues relating to an international student’s stay in the United States. The website address is www.jhu.edu/iss.

International students must clear registration holds through the OIS. For more information on requirements for international students, see below.

Newly Admitted International Students Application Process for F-1 and J-1 Visas

F-1 visa: Most international students who wish to study at Johns Hopkins University (JHU) will use an F-1 visa. To obtain F-1 status JHU requires students to fill out an I-20 form. I-20s are required to apply for the F-1 visa at a U.S. embassy or consulate abroad.

J-1 visa: The Exchange Visitor Program is carried out under the provisions of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 via the J-1. The DS-2019 is a document issued by JHU for students intending to study in J-1 immigration status. The main distinction between F-1 and J-1 students is the source of funding. In order to qualify for J-1 student status, the student must be funded primarily by sources other than personal or family funds.

Transfer students: A person is considered a transfer student for immigration purposes if they are currently in the U.S. as an F-1 or J-1 student and are transferring from one U.S. educational institution to another. Students currently in the U.S. as F-1 or J-1 students at a high school or college must make arrangements with their current school's international office to transfer their SEVIS record to JHU. Transfer students will receive an I-20 or DS-2019 from this office. Please complete the transfer form and submit it to the office located at the top of the form for inclusion in your I-20 or DS-2019 request.

Student Personal Information Update

Go to isis.jhu.edu, sign in and enter your JHED ID and Password. Point to Personal Info and review/update Summary, Emergency Contact, and Family Info.

Program Withdrawal

For those students who decide to withdraw from the program, Johns Hopkins University requires a written notice from their department. The department graduate student coordinator, Lindsay Cook, must also generate a Termination/Withdrawal Report. Graduate students are encouraged to consult the Chair of the department prior to submitting their written notice. Students who have been withdrawn and are then re-admitted to the University must re-satisfy the residency requirement even if that requirement had been fulfilled previously. Once students withdraw from the University, their transcripts are closed. Changes to their academic records will not be permitted once their transcripts are closed.

Non-Resident Status

Students may request a change from resident status to either non-resident status or request a Leave of Absence. Non-resident status is normally reserved for doctoral candidates who have completed all requirements for the degree except the dissertation and have the permission of the Chair of the department/program or appropriate designated faculty and the Graduate Board to continue work away from the University. Arts & Sciences and Engineering students must petition the Graduate Board for change in registration status. Students must obtain the signature of their department/program Chair before submitting their application for a change in status to the Graduate Board. International students must also obtain the signature of the Director of International Student and Scholar Services. A letter of explanation must accompany the application as well. Students should petition the Graduate Board for a change in status well in advance of the semester for which it is desired. When requesting a change of status for the current term, petitions must be submitted no later than the end of the second week of the semester.

All KSAS and WSE full-time program graduate students will be eligible for Non-Resident Status if they:

- Have completed all coursework and requirements for the graduate degree other than the presentation and defense of the doctoral dissertation.
- Have reached the end of their departmental support period or have exhausted support from grants and cannot be fully supported by the department.

NOTE: Research or teaching assistants expected to work more than 19.9 hours per week do not qualify for non-resident status.

Tuition: Students on non-resident status are charged 10% of full-time tuition per semester.

Restrictions: Non-resident students are permitted access to campus, faculty advising and JHU services, however they are not permitted to enroll in any courses, with one exception. Under certain circumstances, international students who file for Curricular Practical Training F1 (CPT1) through the Office of International Student and Scholar Services (OISS) may register for a course entitled “Research and Teaching Practicum” (KSAS) or “Engineering Research Practicum” (WSE). The maximum amount of time that a student may retain non-resident status is four semesters for master’s students and ten semesters for doctoral students. Upon reaching this limit, the student will be required to register for either part-time status (WSE only) or full-time resident status until degree completion.

Non-resident students may work 19.9 hours per week or fewer during the academic year if employed by Johns Hopkins University in any capacity (intersession or summer employment can be full-time, however). If working, students must be paid hourly (time card will be submitted).

An Annual Report for Non-Resident Students must be returned to the Chair by the deadline date located at top of the form. Non-resident students who fail to return the Annual Report form risk being withdrawn from the program.

Leave of Absence (LOA)

Graduate students may apply for up to four semesters of leave of absence (not including the summer term) when medical conditions, compulsory military service, or personal or family hardship prevents them from continuing their graduate studies. Financial difficulty alone does not warrant a leave. To be approved for a leave of absence, graduate students must complete the LOA application and provide the proper documentation for their given situation, as indicated below:

Medical Condition: A letter from a physician (this may be a letter from a doctor at the Student Health and Wellness Center), the Counseling Center or the Office of Student Disability Services

Military Duty: A letter or verification from the Armed Forces

Personal or Family Hardship: A letter from the applicant

A leave of absence will be granted for a specific period of time, not to exceed a total of two years. When approved for a leave of absence, the Chair of the Graduate Board will notify the student. During the leave period, a student may not be enrolled at another university. Before applying for LOA, students should consult their department for information regarding funding when they return from their LOA. Prior to requesting the LOA, it is also highly recommended that the student contact the Health Insurance Coordinator in the Registrar's office for information on how the LOA will affect their health insurance coverage. When on an approved LOA there is no tuition charge; the period of leave is simply regarded as an interruption of the degree program.

A student on a leave of absence is not to make use of any University services or facilities (e.g. counseling center, health center, library, athletic facilities, etc.). A student on a leave of absence who wishes to continue working at the University is not eligible to be paid through the Student Payroll Office. The student must be hired through the Human Resources division of the department employing them. No exceptions can be made.

Returning from Leave of Absence

When returning from leave of absence, a graduate student must complete and submit the Application to Return from Leave of Absence before registering for classes. The form must be accompanied by a letter from one of the sources below. The letter explains what progress has taken place in the student's absence that will enable them to be successful upon return to the university:

Medical Condition: A letter from a physician (including the Student Health and Wellness Center), the Counseling Center or Office of Student Disability Services

Military Duty: A letter or verification from the Armed Forces

Personal or Family Hardship: A personal letter

Any additional letters of support (e.g. from an advisor, department chair, etc.) are welcome. When approved for a return from a leave of absence, the Chair of the Graduate Board will notify the student.

Incoming Political Science Graduate Students

Obtain a JHED ID

The JHED ID is necessary to complete many tasks at Hopkins. New graduate students receive a verification email containing their JHED LIDs. Students may access login instructions by visiting the Graduate Student Portal. You must access your JHED within a week of receiving the initial instructions.

Email

Email is available for all graduate students. If your primary affiliation is student, then an account should be automatically provided to you after you have registered through the Registrar's office. You should see the link after you log into JHED. If you do not see the link, then check with the Registrar's office to confirm your registration.

JCard

A JCard for new students will be obtained after registering for the semester at the Registrar's office. The Registrar's office will direct students to the JCard office at 51 Garland Hall.

Complete the Pre-Entrance Health Forms

New graduate students are expected to complete official health and immunization forms in paper and through an online format. Instructions for completing the forms can be found by visiting the Health and Wellness Center's site. Unless these forms are submitted, there will be a registration hold on your ISIS (student information system) account.

Housing

Student housing is not offered by Johns Hopkins University. New incoming graduate students can contact the graduate students of the department to inquire if a roommate is needed. Alternatively, the Housing office provides a list of available housing. This office is open Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. – 5:00 p.m., at 102 Wolman Hall, Homewood Campus. If you have questions, email offcampus@hd.jhu.edu.

For information about housing off-campus and in Baltimore go to:
<http://www.jhu.edu/~hds/offcampus/index.html>

Graduate Student Orientation

All new graduate students are expected to attend the one-day orientation sessions that are held in August. The Graduate Affairs and Admissions office offers campus tours, peer mentoring to new students, and diversity events. In addition, the Center for Educational Resources (CER) offers a TA Orientation and the OIS (Office of International Services) offers its own orientation session.

Register for Classes

New graduate students must register online. In order to register, all students must have activated their JHED logins. Within the Graduate Student Portal, there is a link for ISIS (student information system), which the system uses for registration. Instructions for registering for classes can be found at the New Student Guide and the FAQ section of this site.

Graduate students must register in consultation with and with approval from their department. As a result, you will see an 'Advisor Hold' on your registration. Other holds, such as one from the Health Center (if the health forms have not been submitted), may also appear. To register holds must be cleared.

Health Insurance

Health insurance for all full-time enrolled graduate students in the Schools of Arts and Sciences and Engineering is required. In many cases, you do not pay for this yourself as health insurance is paid for by the University when you accept a University fellowship.

All graduate students should sign up for health insurance by August 15 through Aetna Student Health. Contact the Registrar's office.

Continuing Political Science Graduate Students

Comprehensive Examinations

Students must pass comprehensive examinations in two approved fields: one major and one minor. The comprehensive examination in the major field is two days (16 hours) in length. The comprehensive examination in the minor field is one day (8 hours) in length. Students who are not native English speakers are allowed one extra hour for each day of their comprehensive exams. Both the major and the minor field are to be chosen from among the five fields of Political Science into which study in the department is primarily organized. Students may, if they wish, take an optional second minor examination in one of these fields, or outside the Department of Political Science. In the latter case, the student must:

- Devise a coherent program of study in an area related to Political Science, in consultation with their department adviser and faculty from other departments.
- Complete with a grade of B or better a minimum of three courses at the 300 or 600-level in the area in question.
- Pass a comprehensive examination prepared and evaluated, in consultation with faculty of the Department of Political Science, by the instructors of those courses.

Transcripts

Students can print an unofficial transcript. Go to <https://isis.jhu.edu/sswf/> and sign in using your JHED ID and password. Click on Registration/My Grades and click on View Unofficial Transcript.

An official copy of your transcript can be obtained in person, on-line or by mail. Go to www.jhu.edu/registrar, go to Undergrad and Grad Students, and click on Transcripts/Verification for additional information and a verification form. Your transcript will be available for pick up within three to five business days.

Dissertation

Preparation of a doctoral dissertation will be supervised and must be approved by two members of the faculty, at least one of whom (the dissertation director) must be a member of the Department of Political Science. Fields may have specific additional requirements. Consult with your faculty advisor. Please see the Academic Program Coordinator to obtain detailed instructions on submission of a dissertation to the members of a defense committee and, upon successful completion of a defense, to the MSE library.

Ph.D. dissertation submission to the library is in an electronic format. See guides.library.jhu.edu/etd.

Graduate Board Oral Exam (GBO Exam)

The final examination for the Ph.D. program takes the form of a defense of the doctoral dissertation. Dissertation defenses are conducted under the rules of the Graduate Board of the Johns Hopkins University. After you have successfully defended your dissertation, you will need to submit your application for graduation to the Registrar's office.

Deadlines

The Graduate Board sets the deadline for when the dissertation needs to be submitted to the Commercial Binding Office after a successful defense. Go to <http://www.graduateboard.jhu.edu/deadlines.htm> for deadline dates.

Graduate Board Calendar

For a student name to be put on the degree completion list the GBO exam, reader letters, dissertation, and department certification must be completed and submitted by the Graduate Board deadline. Should degree requirement materials be received after the deadline date, the student name will be added to the next semester Graduate Board list for completed degrees.

To avoid registration, final Graduate Board Oral Exams must be completed at least two weeks before the start of classes and all materials must be submitted to the Graduate Board and to the Commercial Binding Office prior to the first day of classes.

The Registrar's office must receive an Application for Graduation. Do not send it to the Graduate Board Office.

Graduate Board Exams may be held throughout the academic year. Written requests to schedule a GBO examination should be submitted by the dissertation director in writing at least three weeks prior to the proposed examination date. Students must be registered for the semester in which they take their exam.

Dissertations must be provided to examiners at least two weeks before the date of a GBO exam. Students and advisors are responsible for distributing copies to the examiners.

Graduation

The University Commencement Ceremony is held once per academic year, traditionally in May. Students who complete the degree requirements prior to the ceremony in May can request an official statement of completion from the Office of the Registrar or the Homewood Graduate Board Office.

Application for Graduation

All graduate students must complete the Application for Graduation. You can obtain your application from the Academic Program Coordinator, Lindsay Cook. Completion deadlines are determined by the Homewood Graduate Board for all graduate degree candidates for Arts and Sciences. Deadline dates change each academic year, which means you will need to go to the Homewood Graduate Board's website to find the current deadlines.

Student Office

An office is available to use during the semester when you are teaching. A key can be obtained from Lisa Williams. Please return the key once the semester is over.

Disability Services

Defined by the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and by the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, disabled individuals are those who have a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities, have a record of such impairment, or are regarded as having such an impairment.

Individuals with a disability who are considering applying to Johns Hopkins University as well as current graduate students with a disability who may need accommodations are urged to contact Student Disability Services to discuss how the University can provide reasonable and necessary accommodations to you. Satisfaction with your chosen graduate program will depend on many things, including how well the university and the disability services program meet your needs as a student with a disability. Contacts with SDS are strictly confidential and are not shared with the graduate admissions offices.

For more information, contact: Johns Hopkins University, Student Disability Services, 3400 North Charles Street, 385 Garland Hall, Baltimore, MD 21218. Phone: 410-516-4720. Email: studentdisabilityservices@jhu.edu. Web: web.jhu.edu/disabilities

If you would like to join the Johns Hopkins Federal Credit Union or open a bank account at M&T Bank, you may visit the Credit Union at 4 East 33rd Street, Baltimore, MD 21218 or M&T Bank at Hopkins Square at Charles Village, 3003 North Charles Street, Baltimore, MD 21218, 410-366-1043.

Taxable Wages

Taxes apply for all students. Federal and Maryland State Tax Withholding Certificates can be downloaded from the Student Employment Services website at <https://orchid.hosts.jhmi.edu/stujob/tax.cfm>

Both forms must be completed so your employer (JHU) can withhold the correct amount of tax from your earnings. Tax to be withheld is based on your earnings and the number of allowances you claim. If you are uncertain of the amount to claim, you can use the Personal Allowances Worksheet to obtain the number (found on form W-4). Completed forms should be submitted to the Office of Student Employment Services. Students receiving fellowship payments are responsible for making quarterly estimated federal and state income tax payments, if needed. For more information on fellowship payments go to http://finance.jhu.edu/depts/tax/about_tax.html.

International students should contact the tax office at Eastern Campus to inquire about the tax treaty between the U.S. and your home country.

Tax Forms

Tax forms can be obtained from the Student Payroll Office, 72 Garland Hall. If you have questions regarding taxes, you may contact the Johns Hopkins University Tax Office at tax@jhu.edu or you may visit the office at 3910 Keswick Road, North Building, 4th Floor, Suite N4327B, Baltimore, MD. Office hours are Wednesday, 9:00 am to 12:00 pm, and Tuesday and Thursday, 2:00 pm to 4:30 pm; www.controller.jhu.edu/depts/tax. The Office of International Student and Scholar Services (OISS), in cooperation with the JHU Tax Office, conducts tax seminars in March each year.

Contact Information Update

If you have a new address or phone number, submit the new information to Lindsay Cook for the department's records.

Mailbox

The graduate students' mailboxes are in 370 Mergenthaler Hall, the lounge area. If you are expecting a large package, it may be found in the department at the front desk. You will be notified if you receive a package.

Telephone

There is a telephone for graduate students to use located in the lounge, 370 Mergenthaler. Only local and on-campus calls can be made. No long distance phone calls can be made on the phone.

Keys

Graduate students may obtain a key for the lounge. If you need the key overnight, return the key the next morning. If you receive a key on Friday, return the key Monday morning. See Lisa Williams for the key.

Computers and Printers

The department has two computers and printers that are available in the lounge, 370 Mergenthaler. There is a 30-page limit per print job. If you need to print more, please use the copier machine in the front office; the limit there for a print job is 50 pages. (There is a charge of 1 cent per page if you print more than 50 pages.) The computer can be set to send your print job to the copier.

Photocopies

The copier machine is available for students to make copies or print. There is a charge of 1 cent per page for printing over 50 pages. A copy code is needed for the copier. Please obtain the copy code from Linday Cook, the Academic Program Coordinator.

Library Lockers

Lockers are available in the library. Go to Support Services at MSE Library and a locker or workstation will be assigned to you.

Business Cards

Graduate students can purchase business cards from the University when authorized to do so by the Chair or a faculty advisor. To request business cards, email Lisa Williams. You will be sent contact information on the company that produces business cards for Johns Hopkins University.

Travel Grants

Students year 1st – 2nd needs to request funding for travel from the Chair. Every student 3rd year and above is entitled to $500 for domestic travel and $750 for international travel to and participation in (poster/paper/discussant). There is no need to ask the Chair or DGS for permission to receive this money; all you have to do is submit receipts to Lisa Williams, the Senior Administrative Coordinator. Note that travel reimbursements are provided once every academic year. Additional request for reimbursement within an academic year will need approval from the Department Chair.

Forms for your travel reimbursement will be located on the lounge bulletin board (370 Mergenthaler). Submit all receipts for expenses incurred to Lisa Williams. Receipts must show the last four digits of your credit card.

APSA Student Membership

Because membership in the APSA helps familiarize students with the profession and exposes them to what the APSA has to offer, the department will subsidize the cost of membership for one year for first or second year Ph.D. students.

Desk Copies

TAs usually need to order desk copies of the books being used in the courses to which they are assigned. To do that you must go to the publisher's website to see what their requirements are. Some have an on-line request system and some require the request be on letterhead. It usually takes 4-6 weeks to receive desk copies.

If you need the books before then, you can get a budget number from Lisa Williams and take that to the bookstore. The bookstore will charge the books to the department's account. All paperwork given to you by the bookstore must be returned to the department. Once the desk copies are received, bring them to the office. You will be required to take the books and the paperwork back to the bookstore so that it can credit the department's budget for the total cost of the books.

Intersession/Summer Courses

Graduate Students are encouraged to submit course proposals for Intersession and Summer Semesters. Preference is given to faculty and senior graduate students. The Summer Program office also makes recommendations based on past enrollment for courses. Contact Summer and Intersession Programs at 410-516-4548 or intersession@jhu.edu.

Course Number Request

When you apply for a Dean's Teaching Fellowship or submit a course proposal for any semester, you need to request a course number. Please contact Lindsay Cook, the Academic Program Coordinator, for a course number.

The following information is needed:

- Title of course
- Course level: 100 level – freshman; 200 level – sophomores; 300-400 level – juniors or seniors
- Day and Time of course

The Dean's Teaching Fellowship

The Dean's Teaching Fellowship (DTF) Program is sponsored each year by the Office of the Dean of Arts and Sciences. The program is designed to foster innovation in the undergraduate curriculum, to give advanced graduate students experience teaching their own undergraduate courses, and to provide funding for graduate research.

You will be notified by email with regard to information about the Dean's Teaching Fellowship, instructions about how to apply, eligibility, application requirements and deadline dates. The student who receives a DTF will teach a one-semester course and receive a salary. The Dean's Teaching Fellowship will pay 20% of the student's tuition for the semester that is taught.

Department of Political Science Academic Standing and Conditions of Graduate Student Probation, Funding Withdrawal, and Dismissal (Effective April 2011)

As of Fall 2010, the Homewood Schools of Johns Hopkins University have made effective two policies regarding graduate students. The first is a Graduate Student Academic Review Policy. The second is a Policy for Graduate Student Probation, Funding Withdrawal, and Dismissal.

The Graduate Student Academic Review Policy requires that, among other things, the Department of Political Science publish its own policies and standards with respect to academic standing. As a student who fails to attain a program's minimum level of performance may be placed on academic probation or dismissed using the procedures outlined in the Homewood Schools Policy for Graduate Student Probation, Dismissal, and Funding Withdrawal, in addition to articulating the Political Science department's minimum level of performance, this document spells out the department's conditions of graduate student probation, funding withdrawal, and dismissal.

While these policies are being published and put into effect (at the request of the GRO) to give graduate students a clearer understanding of the standards to which they are being held and a better sense of what will happen to them should they fail to meet these standards, the Political Science department encourages any Political Science graduate students who at any time are concerned about their performance in the program to approach their faculty advisor(s) and/or the Director of Graduate Studies to discuss their personal situations and to consider their options. Often such conversations are all that is necessary to get a student who is (or feels themselves to be) performing poorly back on track. If it is difficult to get in touch with a particular member of the faculty, graduate students should ask the Director of Graduate Studies for assistance.

I. Policies and standards with respect to academic standing

In order to be in good academic standing in the Ph.D. program in Political Science, students must make "good progress" toward the degree. "Good progress" means:

- 1) A student turns in all the work assigned to meet the requirements of the course taken and has no more than 2 incompletes on their transcripts when it is time to register for classes for the next semester. (Registration takes place in November for the Spring semester and in May for the Fall semester.)

If a student has more than 2 incompletes on their transcript when it is time to register for classes for the next semester, the student is subject to being put on academic probation. This decision will be made only after the student has had a conversation with their advisor, the Director of Graduate Studies, and any other members of the faculty the student would like to involve in the process. If the student is put on academic probation*, the student must turn in the work assigned before the next registration period. If the student fails and has more than 2 incompletes to finish when it is time to register for classes again, their academic probation may be extended OR the student may not be allowed to register. The student will be informed of this decision as soon as possible, but no later than one month following the conclusion of the stated probation period. If the student is not allowed to register, the student's funding will be withdrawn and the student will be dismissed from the university.

2) A student completes their courses with a grade of B or better.

If a student receives a grade lower than a B as a final grade in a course, the student is subject to being put on academic probation for the following semester. This decision will be made only after the student has had a conversation with their advisor, the Director of Graduate Studies, and any other members of the faculty the student would like to involve in the process. If the student is put on academic probation, the student will be removed from academic probation if the student completes their courses that semester with a grade of B or better or if the student passes one of their comprehensive exams. However, if the student fails their comprehensive exam or the student receives another final grade lower than a B during the semester of academic probation, the student's academic probation may be extended OR the student may not be allowed to register. The student will be informed of this decision as soon as possible, but no later than one month following the conclusion of the stated probation period. If the student is not allowed to register, the student's funding will be withdrawn and the student will be dismissed from the university.

3) A student completes the 12 courses required to fulfill the requirements of the Ph.D. in a timely fashion. "A timely fashion" means that a student takes no more than 6 semesters to complete coursework and receive final grades.

If a student fails to complete their coursework in a timely fashion, the student is subject to being put on academic probation. This decision will be made only after the student has had a conversation with their advisor, the Director of Graduate Studies, and any other members of the faculty the student would like to involve in the process. If the student is put on academic probation and does not complete their coursework the following semester, academic probation may be extended OR the student may not be allowed to register. The student will be informed of this decision as soon as possible, but no later than one month following the conclusion of the stated probation period. If the student is not allowed to register, the student's funding will be withdrawn and the student will be dismissed.

4) A student passes their comprehensive examinations in two subfields in a timely fashion. "A timely fashion" means that a student takes no more than 8 semesters to pass their comprehensive exams.

If a student fails to pass the comprehensive exams in 8 semesters, the student is subject to being put on academic probation. This decision will be made only after the student has had a conversation with their advisor, the Director of Graduate Studies, and any other members of the faculty the student would like to involve in the process. If the student is put on academic probation and the student fails to pass the comprehensive exams by the end of the following semester, academic probation may be extended or the student may not be allowed to register. The student will be informed of this decision as soon as possible, but no later than one month following the conclusion of the stated probation period. If the student is not allowed to register, the student's funding will be withdrawn and the student will be dismissed.

5) A student passes their comprehensive examinations in two subfields.

If a student fails to pass a major or minor comprehensive examination, the faculty members overseeing that examination will decide whether it is appropriate for the student to take the examination a second time. If it is determined that the student should not take the examination a second time or if the student is permitted to take the examination a second time and fails it again, the student's funding will be withdrawn and the student will be dismissed.

II. Policies and standards with regard to being a teaching assistant

In order to qualify for a stipend while a student in the Ph.D. program in Political Science at Johns Hopkins University, a student must be willing to serve as a teaching assistant. The obligations of a teaching assistant vary depending on the course with which the student is assisting but will usually include:

- 1) Attending lecture as required by the professor;
- 2) Attending, preparing, and leading discussion sections;
- 3) Holding office hours;
- 4) Grading undergraduate student work fairly and in a timely fashion as determined by the professor;
- 5) Cooperating and coordinating with the professor and any other teaching assistants on matters related to the course (such as policies pertaining to exam review, grading, etc.)

If a student fails to fulfill these obligations, they may be put on probation for the rest of the semester and required to attend a workshop on college-level teaching. This decision will be made only after the student has had a conversation with their advisor, the Director of Graduate Studies, the Director of Undergraduate Studies, and any other members of the faculty the student would like to involve in the process. If problems persist while the student is on probation (per the "Homewood Schools Policy for Graduate Student Probation, Funding Withdrawal, and Dismissal" this period can be no less than 4 in-semester work weeks), the student will not be permitted to continue serving as a teaching assistant, at which time the student will lose their stipend for the rest of that semester. If a student fails to fulfill their teaching obligations in more than one class, the student will not be permitted to teach again and the student will lose their stipend permanently.

* The Homewood Schools Policy for Graduate Student Probation, Funding Withdrawal, and Dismissal dictates that when a student is put on academic probation, the student is sent a formal letter and a meeting is arranged between the student and either their faculty advisor, their supervisor, the departmental director of graduate studies, or the department chair. The letter outlines the student's academic shortcomings, indicates the corrective measures necessary to remain in the program or to retain funding, and states the length of the student's probationary period. Any funding ramifications for the student will be included as well. The department must ensure receipt of the letter. A copy of the letter will also be sent to the cognizant Dean as well as to the Office of Student Financial Services and the Office of International Student and Scholar Services (if appropriate).

The student may appeal the probation decision. According to the Homewood Schools Policy for Graduate Student Probation, Funding Withdrawal, and Dismissal, a student may appeal the probation decision within ten business days, to the Program Chair, with a letter stating why they feel this decision is unmerited. The program must render a decision on the appeal within ten business days. The student may then appeal that decision within ten business days to the cognizant Dean, again, with a letter stating why they feel this decision is unmerited.
