Writing a Senior Thesis in International Studies and Political Science

What is a Senior thesis?
A senior thesis is an extended original research project written under the supervision of a faculty advisor during your senior year.

How long is a senior thesis typically?
Projects vary. Theses are generally between 50-99 pages. Some are longer, but quality is more important length. The better question to ask yourself is how much desire do I have to take on such a serious research and writing commitment?

Who should write a senior thesis?
A senior thesis project is best suited for students who have an interest in exploring a specific question and/or field of knowledge beyond their previous course work. A thesis is an in-depth analysis of a specific topic with the emphasis on original research. Writing a good thesis requires a significant amount of work well beyond what is required in most 300 level classes in terms of the amount of preparatory research and actual effort putting it together. It also requires that you direct and motivate yourself. You must figure out what question to ask and how to answer it. Your advisor does exactly what the name implies; he/she advises based on what you bring to the table. Do not expect your advisor to come up with a topic for you.

What is a suitable topic for a thesis?
It is possible to write on any topic for which you get your advisor’s approval. It should also be one that falls within your advisor’s area of expertise – so that they can advise you appropriately. A good topic is one in which you are deeply interested, relates to your program of study, and can reasonably be completed by the end of your senior year. AT ITS CORE IS AN ARGUMENT THAT YOU MAKE BY MARSHALLING EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT YOUR POINT OF VIEW.

How do I find an advisor?
It is your responsibility to find a faculty member who is willing to advise you on the senior thesis project. Once you have a possible thesis topic in mind, identify members of the faculty whose interests fall within the ambit of your topic and contact them about your proposed project. Office hours are a good time for this, or you can contact professors via e-mail. You should do some thinking about your topic before you approach a potential advisor. Your advisor should be a permanent member of the faculty (not an adjunct) with whom you have, or desire to have, a productive working relationship. The ideal advisor is one with whom you have worked or studied in the past, who has some expertise in the topic you wish to study, and with whom you have a good rapport (the political science and international studies coordinators can also suggest faculty to you).
Can I have an outside advisor?
For political science, an advisor in political science is necessary. For international studies the advisor can be from any of the main contributing departments: political science, economics, history, anthropology OR sociology.

I found an advisor, now what?
Every student writing a senior thesis must enroll in THE THESIS COLLOQUIUM CLASS during the fall semester of their senior year. IN THIS CLASS, STUDENTS DOING SENIOR THESES IN POLITICAL SCIENCE AND INTERNATIONAL STUDIES WILL WORK ON THEIR THESES UNDER THE GUIDANCE OF A PROFESSOR. STUDENTS WILL ALSO BE EXPECTED TO WORK CLOSELY WITH THEIR INDIVIDUAL ADVISORS.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER THE THESIS COLLOQUIUM COURSE IS OVER?
With the completion of the THESIS COLLOQUIUM COURSE, your advisor AND THE PROFESSOR TEACHING THE COLLOQUIUM will decide whether sufficient progress has been made to continue the project. IF YOU ARE MAKING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS, YOU WILL ENROLL IN AN INDEPENDENT STUDY CLASS IN THE SPRING UNDER THE DIRECTION OF YOUR THESIS ADVISOR. IT IS DURING THIS CLASS THAT YOU WILL COMPLETE YOUR THESIS. SIX CREDITS ARE AWARDED FOR THE SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF A THESIS. IF YOU ARE NOT MAKING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS IN THE THESIS COLLOQUIUM OR IF YOU CHOOSE NOT TO GO ON TO DO A THESIS IN THE SPRING, YOU CAN DECIDE TO OPT OUT OF THE PROCESS, EARNING THREE CREDITS FOR THE THESIS COLLOQUIUM CLASS (ASSUMING OF COURSE THAT YOU PASS THIS CLASS).

Will I receive honors for my thesis?
If you complete the thesis and you have a GPA of 3.7 within the major, then you will graduate with departmental honors. If your thesis is of exceptional quality, your advisor may nominate it for either the Julius Turner Prize for Best Thesis in Political Science, or the Robert Tucker Prize for Best Thesis in International Studies. Because of deadlines by the Registrar, theses must be submitted in early MAY (BE SURE TO CHECK THE DATE AS IT WILL CHANGE YEAR TO YEAR) to be considered for either of these awards. You and your advisor can discuss whether this is a possibility.

I am not eligible for honors because of my GPA. Can I still write a thesis?
Yes. Whether you are eligible for honors or not, it is up to your prospective thesis advisor to decide whether you should pursue the project.

Can the same thesis count in two separate departments?
No. You cannot receive credit twice for the same piece of writing. In fact, the Johns Hopkins University Ethics Board considers, “submitting the same or substantially similar work to satisfy the requirements of more than one course without permission,” as a violation of academic integrity.
Can a graduate student advise me?
No, although some graduate students might be willing to help you INFORMALLY if you are writing on a topic that relates to their research interests.

Will I receive instruction on writing a thesis?
There is no formal instruction on writing a thesis. There are a few suggested readings below that can help you think about how to approach a project of this kind. In addition, the department offers courses on the craft of political science research and WRITING. SOME PROFESSORS WHO TEACH CASSES IN THIS AREA ARE SARAH PARKINSON, ADRIA LAWRENCE AND RENEE MARLIN-BENNETT. Students are strongly encouraged to take such CLASSES before embarking on a thesis project. Ultimately, however, the main burden of writing the thesis falls upon you.

What can I do to get started on my thesis?

- Think and read broadly about your topic. What interests you? ‘What annoys you?’ is often a good place to start. How can you form those interests into viable research questions? What’s been written on your subject already? What research methods will you need to use?

- Set specific goals with your advisor. The sooner you establish a plan of research with your advisor, the better. Once you have settled on your topic, do some preliminary research and begin discussing with your advisor how to proceed. Get their advice on your ideas, suggestions for further reading, etc.

- Learn about the craft of research. Good scholarship means solid research skills, good writing, and careful revising. Here are some books that can help:

What if I have more questions?
Contact the undergraduate coordinators in political science and international studies or the directors of these programs.

Revised July 2019
The senior thesis is the capstone intellectual project for students in political science and international studies. It is intended only for those students who wish to undertake a research project in conjunction with a faculty advisor. Given the level of commitment and workload this entails, you should approach the senior thesis as a twelve-month project running from April of your junior year to April of your senior year. The following is a recommended timetable for the project.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>When</th>
<th>What</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>April of Junior Year</td>
<td>Begin developing a topic; approach prospective faculty about advising the project</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>May of Junior Year</td>
<td>Once a faculty member has agreed to advise you, establish a summer work plan such as a reading list or preliminary research that will help refine your thesis topic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Summer</td>
<td>Begin research on your topic; communicate with your advisor over the summer about your progress</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fall semester of Senior Year</td>
<td>Enroll in THE three credit THESIS COLLOQUIUM WHERE YOU WILL establish a work plan such as a literature review, thesis outline, or introductory chapter to be completed by the end of the semester</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spring semester of Senior Year</td>
<td>If your advisor determines that sufficient progress has been made, enroll IN AN INDEPENDENT STUDY UNDER YOUR ADVISOR’S DIRECTION; establish a timetable for completion of the project</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>April of Senior Year</td>
<td>Complete your thesis; your advisor may nominate it for a departmental prize</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>